LOEW'S PALACE

F and 13th St. World's Largest, Handsomest and Costliest Photoplay Theater

Opened Monday Night in a Blaze of Glory

POST—"The most imposing motion picture house of the Capital."

"An opening Washington people will not forget."

TIMES—"Audience of Capital chattering came, saw—and was conquered. It would be weak to say the Palace is this city's most impressively beautiful playhouse. In its immensity, its appointments and its capabilities it stands alone. A gem of great worth and beauty added to Washington's playhouses."

HERALD—"Mr. Loew, the theater expert, has built many theaters all over the United States, but this, the triumph of the Loew circuit, is his best. Amazingly beautiful."

STAR—"Marcus Loew presented to the National Capital the most beautiful motion picture house in America. Washington has no remembrance of more gala events than the occasion of the opening."

LIEUT. COMEGYS MISSING IN ACTION

The name of Edward Theodore Comegys, first lieutenant in the Eleventh United States Aero Bombing Squadron, appears in today's casualty list as "missing in action." He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Comegys, of 2125 Q street.

Lieutenant Comegys, twenty-two years old, was among the first to enter the Fort Myer officers' training camp. He volunteered for the aviation branch and was a member of the first contingent to be sent to Ontario, Canada, for training. From there he was detailed as instructor to Fort Worth, Tex., where he stayed until January last, when he went to France.

Comegys has been missing since September 1. His bombing squadron had just completed a successful raid, when, on the return to their own lines, the Americans were attacked by ten enemy machines. Comegys was missing after the encounter.

Lieutenant Comegys was born in Catonsville, Md., where he completed his early education. His parents moved from Catonsville to this city about seven years ago and young Comegys attended McKinley Technical High School.

He was a member of the National Guard and went to the Mexican border as a sergeant in Battery B.

"Doug" is going to have a parade of his own tonight.

The bright smile of the screen's greatest hero will illuminate Pennsylvania avenue about 7 o'clock when, accompanied by prominent business men, he will auto his way to the Liberty Hut to host, in his best Fairbanks manner, the united war work campaign.

Fairbanks has been designated special publicity representative to the united war work campaign by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and will attempt to raise $25,000,000 of the total quota of $170,500,000 needed to carry on the work of the seven organizations.

Two meetings will be held Sunday afternoon to boost the campaign. Christine Miller will sing at the Liberty Hut and Lieut. J. P. Cui, a veteran soldier of France, will address the meeting at the Central High School.

Lieut. Cui's mother was one of the many inhabitants of Lille who were deported to Germany early in the war. He has just received word that his mother is again behind the French lines.

The meeting at the Central High School will be under the auspices of the Washington Boy Scouts, U. S. Assistant Attorney General H. Thompson will preside.
